Hostage escapes, police shoot suspect

$10,000 bank robbery foiled

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

A man suspected of robbing a Campbell Hill bank and taking a hostage to aid his escape was shot by FBI agents Thursday and is in serious condition after he and his female accomplice ran a roadblock and crashed their automobile.

Richard Kennedy, address unknown, is in serious condition after being shot twice by FBI agents. His alleged accomplice, Cathy Kremer, 27, of Marion was not seriously injured.

The robbery occurred about 12:20 p.m. at the First State Bank of Campbell Hill, according to Bill Richelman, bank president. Richelman said five employees of the bank and one customer were in the bank when a man and a woman entered the bank, pointed a gun and demanded money. He said the robbers got away with about $10,000 in cash from the drawers at the cashiers' counter, but they did not get into the bank's vault. Bank employees present at the robbery included Deborah Rathert, Norma Fuhrhop, Carol Boswell, and Frances Schuttie, all of Campbell Hill, he said.

Richelman said he sounded the alarm, which rang at the Medtown Market. Market owner Ron Schisserdecker said after receiving the alarm he called the police, and then saw a man flee the bank in a brown station wagon. The car was reportedly similar to one stolen from a Percy pharmacy following another robbery last night.

According to authorities,

Kennedy abandoned that car and another before he and Kremer allegedly commandeered a car driven by Rebecca Graff, 33, of Ava. According to FBI Agent Dean Paisley, the bank turned up some leads and road blocks were set up. After taking Graff hostage, Kennedy and Kremer allegedly drove Graff's car from Murphysboro toward Ava on the Ava Blacktop, where they hit a roadblock.

After firing gunshots through the windshield of Jackson County Sheriff's Deputy Akins, Kennedy ran the roadblock set up five miles northeast of Murphysboro. He then turned onto a rural road, and struck two vehicles and drove off the road. Sue York of Murphysboro was driving one of the cars which was hit, according to state police. York's car overturned and she sustained minor injuries. She was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital in Murphysboro and was later released.

Kennedy took Graff and an automatic machine gun and fled into a field. Graff broke away and dove to the ground. The pursuing Akins then shot Kennedy twice when the suspect attempted to turn and fire at him. Kennedy was taken to Memorial Hospital in Carbondale. He was flown to St. Louis for further treatment and was listed in serious condition, according to police.

Kremer was apprehended by police at the scene of the car crash, and is being held in the custody of the sheriff and the FBI in Jackson County jail. Kremer was taken to St. Joseph Hospital for injuries sustained in the crash, but her injuries were minor and she was released. Graff was listed in fair condition at St. Joseph Hospital. Authorities said her injuries were minor.

Charges will be reviewed by Jackson County State's Attorney John Clemons and the Illinois State's attorney in East St. Louis.

Police from Perry, Randolph and Jackson counties took part in the chase, which also involved the FBI and state police, in addition to a plane and two helicopters, according to State Trooper Mel Kersten.

Trooper Earl Creath said Kennedy was armed with an Uzi automatic machine gun, a Derringer, and an automatic machine gun.

Employee athletic fee endorsed

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

In response to a vote by the Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee to increase the student athletics fee by $8, the Graduate and Professional Student Council voted Wednesday to create a new athletics fee for SIU-C faculty, staff and administration.

The IAAC is composed of 10 faculty members, two staff and administrative appointees, two non-University appointees and five student representatives.

The IAAC voted 12-3 Tuesday to approve the fee increase proposal, which calls for a $2 increase for a repair, replacement and modernization fund and a $6 increase to offset projected Fiscal Year 1985 budget deficits.

Dissenting votes on the IAAC measure were cast by Glenn Stolar of the GPSC, Aldo Baiocchi of the Undergraduate Student Organization and Gary Auid of the Civil Service Employees Council.

The GPSC resolution calls for a mandatory yearly contribution of $10 for faculty and staff members to be withheld from paychecks on Sept. 1. Administrators would pay a progressive fee that starts at $20 and increases proportionally with salary.

The resolution was approved by the GPSC by a 30-2 margin.

GPSC President Ann Greeley said that although there is an element of light-heartedness in the resolution, there is also a serious element.

"We're not out to alienate or punish faculty and staff, but we do want to let them know what it

Crash hearing focuses on repair records

By John Racine
Staff Writer

The lead mechanic for the Air Illinois' plane that crashed Oct. 11, killing 10 people, said Thursday that he logged all maintenance reports, countering earlier testimony that pilots had sometimes failed to record malfunctions in flight logs and that some records had been hidden from federal inspectors.

Keith Walinski, who has been the lead mechanic since September for the Hawker-Siddeley 748, said he logged all reports to him whether they were written or verbal.

He said that verbal reports often were "more detailed from a captain when he is releasing the aircraft to the maintenance crew" than they might be in a flight log.

Walinski testified Thursday in the third day of public hearings conducted by the National Transportation Safety Board to look into the crash, which killed seven passengers and three crew members. The hearing, scheduled to hear from 24 witnesses, has been extended to Friday and may continue Saturday.

The mechanic said that flight and maintenance crews sometimes relayed information about a problem by means of notes. He said, however, that "all of our maintenance was recorded on the forms."

Walinski's testimony countered earlier statements by employees of the Carbondale-based regional carrier.

On Tuesday, Air Illinois' chief pilot Capt. Curtis Welge had said of generator problems that were not entered in a maintenance log that "the things that I did not think were a problem I did not write up. They were not left out by any willful admission."

Earlier Thursday, Ray Schramel, Air Illinois vice president for operations, said that "for a pilot to fail to log a discrepancy was a violation of Air Illinois policy." On Wednesday the airline issued a reminder to its crews that all items must be entered in logs whether they occur before, during or after flight.

Air Illinois President Roger Street said that maintenance crews and supervisors meet each day to discuss maintenance items. In a press conference Thursday, Street stressed the airline's stand on safety: "We never have and never will compromise safety for the sake of money."

During the morning and afternoon sessions, Russell Zich, former lead mechanic for the Hawker-Siddeley, testified for about four hours. Zich, employed by Air Virginia since August, said the Air Illinois personnel had post-dated some

3 inmates indicted in guard slayings

By Patrick Williams
Staff Writer

Three inmates charged in the Oct. 22 stabbing deaths of two guards at Marion Federal Penitentiary have a history of committing crimes while in prison, Marion spokesman Dean Leech said Thursday.

Thomas Silverstein, 31, Clayton Fountain, 28, and Randy Gomez, 28, were indicted in the slayings of guards Merle E. Clutts and Robert Hoffman, Leech said.

Clutts and Hoffman were stabbed the same day within a 30 hour period in Cellblock H, the strictest segregation unit at the prison. The attacks also left two guards wounded.

Silverstein, who is serving a 15-year term, two life sentences and a 20-year term consecutively, is charged in the murder of 51-year-old Clutts, according to Leech. He was originally sentenced to 15-years for armed bank robbery in 1975. While serving time in 1980 for that crime, he was given a life sentence for murdering a fellow inmate at the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

In 1982 Silverstein was given a second life sentence for killing an inmate at Marion. Silverstein is also serving a 20-year sentence for conspiracy to commit murder, Leech said.

Fountain, who is serving two life sentences and one 15-year term, was indicted for the murder of the 53-year-old Hoffman, Leech said Thursday.

Fountain was court-martialed and given a life sentence in July 1974 for murder, kidnapping, assault with a deadly weapon, robbery, larceny, lifting a weapon against a senior officer, possession of a deadly weapon and unlawful detention.

In 1980 he was sentenced to 15 years for voluntary manslaughter and conveying a weapon while at Marion, Leech said. He was also received a life sentence in 1982 for murdering another prisoner at Marion with Silverstein.

Fountain and Silverstein are also charged with the murder of inmate Raymond Smith on Sept. 22, 1982, Leech said.

Randy Gomez, the third inmate charged in the slayings, was charged with aiding and abetting Silverstein in the attacks. Gomez is serving an aggregate of 19 years — 15 years for armed bank robbery in 1978, one year for assault while serving at the federal penitentiary at Terre Haute, Ind. and three years for assaulting a corrections officer at Marion, Leech said.

MAPP members to attend weapons talks

By John Schrag
Staff Writer

Three members of the Mid-America Peace Project will travel to St. Louis this weekend to participate in the fourth National Nuclear Weapons Freeze Campaign Conference.

Nick Rion, Keela Williams and Andy Leighton will join an estimated 500 to 900 local freeze movement organizers for the three-day conference, which begins Friday afternoon.

Rion, who is a member of the Illinois Nuclear Weapons

Freeze Campaign executive committee, said the conference will allow local freeze organizers from throughout the country to help set strategy for the national organization.

"We are going to redefine our direction for the future," Rion said. "We will try to reach a consensus on the best way to win passage of the freeze, which is still our best hope for stopping the arms race."

"A lot of people said the freeze was dead," Rion said. "I think that in 1984 there's going to be a renewed interest in the movement."

The conference will feature workshops on a variety of freeze organizational strategies, including congressional lobbying, fund raising, coalition building and education.

Earlier this year, the House of Representatives, by a vote of 278-149, passed a resolution calling for an immediate, verifiable bilateral freeze on the levels of nuclear weapons held by the United States and the Soviet Union. The Senate, however, rejected a freeze resolution by a vote of 58-40.

Druse judge assassinated in Beirut

BEIRUT (AP) — A man pretending to seek legal advice walked into the apartment of Lebanon's top Druse religious judge and assassinated him with a silencer-equipped pistol Thursday. The army, fearing revenge killings, clamped a curfew on Beirut and warned that citizens carrying arms would be shot.

Druse gunners hammered Lebanese army positions south of Beirut after the assassination and snipers killed a French peacekeeping soldier.

Pentagon to seek increase in funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger is planning a Pentagon spending request for the next fiscal year of about $305 billion, an increase of nearly $5 billion or more than 21 percent over this year's level, congressional sources disclosed Thursday.

Several sources predicted a request that large would provoke a major election year fight in Congress.

Agencies plan report on El Salvador

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five private agencies promised Thursday to prepare their own report on human rights abuses in El Salvador, after President Reagan vetoed a bill that would have required Salvadoran political and social reforms as a condition of U.S. military aid.

At the same time, leading Democrats denounced Reagan's veto as likely to encourage right-wing death squads in El Salvador which recently have intensified killing of civilians regarded as politically suspect.

Gunmen rob four area food stores

By John Stewart
Staff Writer

In a rash of robberies, three food stores in Carbondale and one in Marion have been robbed since Tuesday night.

Police said the robbery of the Huck's Convenience Food Stores in Marion and Carbondale Thursday morning may be related, but would not say whether the robberies of Boren's IGA Foodliner East and Convenient Food Mart in Carbondale Wednesday were related to each other.

The Boren's IGA robbery occurred about 9:15 p.m. Wednesday when two black males, one carrying a sawed-off shotgun, approached a clerk in the store's office, located in Lewis Park Mall, and demanded money. The two fled north on foot.

Police said circumstances in the IGA holdup were similar to the robbery of the Convenient Food Mart on U.S. Route 51 Tuesday morning. Two black men, one armed with a shotgun, reportedly got away with about $300. Police declined to comment Thursday on whether the two robberies were definitely related.

In addition, the Huck's Convenience Food Stores in Carbondale and Marion were robbed at separate times early Thursday, possibly by the same man. Carbondale police said the Huck's at 105 Emerald Lane was robbed at 1:22 a.m. when a white male entered the store carrying a handgun wrapped in cloth and forced the cashier to open the safe and remove cash from the register. The man, who was described by police as 5 feet 8 inches tall, in his late 20s and wearing a tan ski mask, took about $48.

At 4:41 a.m., the Huck's on New Route 13 in Marion was robbed of $450 cash by a white male wearing a ski mask and carrying a chrome-plated handgun, according to Marion police. The man was reportedly wearing blue jeans and gloves.

Three arrested on drug charges

Two SIU-C students and a Champaign man have been arrested by federal authorities on drug charges, bringing the total within one week to 20 arrests connected with various drug rings operating in Southern Illinois.

Robert J. O'Brien, 21, a sophomore in general studies, and Thomas P. O'Brien, 22, a senior in microbiology, were arrested Tuesday morning for attempting to purchase marijuana, according to Joseph Ondrula, special agent for the FBI. Also arrested was Thomas K. O'Connor, 25, of Champaign. The O'Briens, who are brothers, both live in Carbondale.

The three were arrested in a warehouse in Anna as a result of an investigation by the Federal Drug Task Force operating in the southern district of Illinois. Task force officials were assisted with the arrests by the Anna Police Department and Union County Sheriff's Department.

Ondrula said that, after initial court appearances Tuesday at the U.S. District Court in Benton, the three were transferred to the St. Clair County Jail in Belleville in lieu of $30,000 bond for O'Connor, $20,000 bond for Robert O'Brien and $15,000 bond for Thomas O'Brien. They are expected to be indicted by a federal grand jury next week.

Support the Salukis

THIS SATURDAY at McAndrew Stadium, SIU-C and Indiana State square off for Round Two of the NCAA I-AA playoffs.

It is a do or die situation for the Salukis. If they win, they go on to Round Three against the winner of the Nevada-Reno vs. North Texas State game. If they lose, it would be the end of an extraordinary season for Coach Rey Dempsey's Salukis.

But, let's not talk about losing, let's talk about winning. The Salukis will be psyched up for this game. Except for one week, the Dogs have been rated No. 1 in the I-AA polls since Oct. 10. And an added confidence-builder will be the Dogs' 34-21 victory over Indiana State at Terra Haute — a win that first put the Salukis at the top of the I-AA heap.

THE SALUKIS are a tough team. They've proved it. A 10-1 record had been unheard of in Saluki football. Their only loss came against a I-A team, the under-rated Wichita State Shockers in the final game of the regular season. Rey Dempsey has been named Missouri Valley Conference Coach of the Year. Donnell Daniel has been named MVC Defensive Player of the Year. As a team the Salukis had five players on the MVC first team, five on the second team and three honorable mentions. The Saluki defense led the MVC in every major category this season. The Dogs have a winning attitude this season and the talent to back it up.

ANOTHER FACTOR that favors the Salukis is the home field advantage. The capacity of McAndrew Stadium is 17,323. The capacity of the parking lot is unlimited. Every fanatic in the stands Saturday is a boon for our team. Attendance does more than make administrators smile, it is a motivation for the players. This Saturday's game will not be a cakewalk like some of the Salukis earlier victories. This is the playoffs, and it will be a hard fought game from kick-off to final gun. With fan support, a fired-up Saluki team can move on to Round Three, just one step from a national championship.

No limits in Peace Corps

I would like to thank and commend Jennifer Phillips for the article concerning the Peace Corps office. However, I believe I failed to mention a few important points. One being, there is no upper age limit to be a volunteer, nor is a college degree mandatory. People with experience in carpentry, farming, masonry, etc., but without a degree, are encouraged to apply along with candidates with degrees from other fields.

The office here in Ag 117 is to serve not only students, but any interested individual from the Southern Illinois area. If you are interested, drop by for a talk. The Peace Corps office is under the supervision of Dr. H. Olson of the International Agriculture program.

— Mark Kromer, Graduate, Zoology.

Lou Harris move over, the results are in

LOU HARRIS would be proud.

Through the magic of newspaper mail-in surveys, I have solved the identity crisis so prevalent in the people of Illinois' several regions.

If you don't remember, I wrote a column before Thanksgiving Break decrying the vagueness with which people identify Chicagoland, Central Illinois, Southern Illinois and the combination of the latter two known as "downstate."

I included a survey blank so my readership (which I estimated at around "a dozen or so") could decide for the rest of the state just where one region ends and the next begins.

HOW MANY responses did I get? One, do you see.

That number, for professional pollsters, can mean one of two things. If you assume that everyone who gets a Daily Egyptian (somewhere well over 20,000 people and caged parakeets) is a subject of the survey, the response ratio in the study is an astronomically dismal one in 1,666. That leaves a wide gap for error, at best. But if you figure that 12 people out of a "dozen or so" readers of my column responded, you can put far more faith in the result. I prefer to think of it in these terms:

Jay Small

THE RESULTS, at any rate, are fascinating.

When asked where the line is that separates Southern Illinois from Central Illinois, eight respondents (66.6 percent) said Salem — the clear winner. One subject said "Effingburg"; another said, "Mt. Vernon, and that's pushing it." And yet another picked response E, which stated, "There is no such thing — I'm from Chicagoland, and you're all backward downstaters."

The Communist Party is not socialist

As coordinator for the Tri-County Democratic Socialists of America, I want to thank you for mentioning us in the October 31 edition of the D.E. However, I must seek to correct a rather large error within the context of Bruce Kirkham's article. It is reported the DSA is the second largest socialist organization in the United States. This, though roughly correct, is misleading. The Communist Party U.S.A., which is larger, does indeed advocate a socialist economic theory. However, due to other characteristics of the CP-USA it is not a member of the Socialist International and is not considered to be a democratic socialist organization. As this is the case, DSA is counted as the largest socialist organization in the USA.

But this may be understood as not more than an interpretation of a less than interesting fact and, therefore, dismissed. The mistake I am compelled to correct is the one stating local DSA membership. DSA locally does not have 50 members. At best it has 15 to 20. It does, however, communicate regularly with upwards of 50 local "leftist types" who, when secure in their surroundings, will admit to the appellation of democratic socialist.

How this unfortunate error crept into my reported interview is, of course, a mystery to me. I am known to infrequently exaggerate, certainly. Twain's famous remark that truth is a precious commodity and best used sparingly is perhaps apropos to the expressions of many public figures and other habitual liars. I am obviously not among these. It seems necessary, however, to bring this unfortunate conversational ambiguity to your attention. — Everett G. Hughes, Democratic Socialists of America.

The real meaning of Christmas

Recently, while near Lawson 151 waiting to go to class, I noticed a leaflet on the bulletin board that looked unusual. It stated, "Do you know the truth about Christmas?" Below that it had an illustration depicting Saint Nicholas crying below the cross of the crucified Jesus Christ. Below that it stated, "It's Jesus' Birthday!"

The organizations who published this leaflet, namely Chi Alpha and Last Days Ministries, must have forgotten that Christmas is a celebration of the coming of Jesus Christ, not his going. It is also a time of preparation, Advent, as the Roman Catholic's call it. Needless to say, I was a little upset at these two organizations' interpretation of Christmas.

Christmas for me is a time of rejoicing, giving as well as receiving, love and affection in the form of gifts, hugs, handshakes, and saying "I love you" to my parents, relatives, brothers and sisters.

It is also a time to remember that Christ was born into this world to bring a little hope that one day we too may enter the kingdom of God.

I'm sure the organizations involved in the publishing of this leaflet will take into account my feelings on the issue about the "truth" of Christmas, and at least change the illustration to, say, a cradle holding the baby Jesus, and old Saint Nick kneeling beside Him, smiling.

— Doug Wiencik, Freshman, Administration of Justice.

Tad Jach, an SIU-C senior, even wrote a letter to attempt to convince me that the line should be drawn at Effingham, a city I hadn't put on the survey.

"Believe it or not, when it snows up around St. Louis and starts moving south to our area," he wrote, "the snow more often than not stops at a line running east and west from Effingham."

Nice try, Tad. But snow knows no sociology. Salem is my pick, too.

KANKAKEE was the choice of an overwhelming 75 percent of the respondents as the point at which Central Illinois is separated from Chicagoland. Steve Schneiderman from over in Thermal and Environmental Engineering had a response worth at least passing consideration. The line, he said, is "wherever bumpkins begin thinking a 16-inch softball game requires mitts."

I see only one problem with that. Folks south of Kankakee (or at least south of Salem) don't play 16-inch softball. They play kit-ball. It's the same thing, of course, but don't try to tell that to a bumpkin wearing a kit-ball glove.

ACTUALLY, I can be even more specific on this question after making the trip myself over break.

The exact point is a truck stop on Kankakee's south side where unleaded gas is $1.33 a gallon (!) and the attendants-waitresses-cashiers wear makeup applied with paint rollers and old Windex squirt-bottles. Somebody should buy 'em a chisel for Christmas — Noxema wouldn't cut through the blush.

Are some people in Chicagoland correct in assuming that downstaters are backward? 50 percent said no, 33 percent said it depends on who's making the assumption and 8 percent said yes.

AND ARE SOME Southern Illinoisans correct in assuming that upstaters (folks north of Effingham) are city slickers? 41 percent said yes, 25 percent said no and 16 percent said Southern Illinoisans are never correct.

I should've known that the responses on these two questions would be relatively inconclusive. I'd have been better off to ask if the women behind the counter at that Kankakee truck stop were backward city slickers.

Perhaps the best result of my effort at settling these questions, though, is something I knew had to happen sooner or later.

Somebody from Tolono wrote me a letter.

THE PRE-BREAK column marked the third time I'd mentioned Tolono since I started writing columns last summer. And Dino Chambers, who lives just south of that fair city, wrote to say he appreciated the attention.

"Thank you for making the predominantly Chicago populace of SIU aware of Tolono," he said. "Actually, it is my thought that living in Central Illinois is best. Both Chicago and Carbondale are not far away. And Champaign does have a lot of things going for it. The thing is, all are far enough away from Tolono to give it a life of its own."

Darn. And just when the 1992 World's Fair folks decided to settle in Chicago. But I suppose Dino's friendly town could still make a bid for the 1988 Olympics — or maybe the GOP Convention.

Berating Morris Library propaganda

BEFORE AND SINCE I came to SIU-C, one feature of the University has been praised to me more than any other.

No, folks, it's not the Saluki Shakers, bless their hearts. It's certainly not the Journalism School or McAndrew Stadium. It's not even administrators' salaries, although it is almost as big.

It's Morris Library.

When I visited campus, my counselors and guides were constantly saying things like, "You're aware, of course, Rod, that we have the largest college library in the Western hemisphere, bar none." And after awhile, I began to believe the propaganda. They've had me under their spell for almost four years now, but no longer. I'll tell you about it.

FIRST, let's look at the "courteous" and "helpful" way people using the library are treated.

At the Carbondale Public Library, when you check out a book the folks behind the counter — usually elderly women — chat with you while they run the cards through the machine and after they finish, they say the most extraordinary thing: "Thank you and enjoy your books." Really.

But at Morris it's a different story. The folks there — usually, student workers, compatriates in the struggle for higher knowledge who you'd think would have some compassion — just slap you

I.D. on the counter and mutter gruffly, "four weeks."

THEY EXHIBIT all the kindness and sympathy of the Auschwitz guards I saw the other night in "Sophie's Choice."

The next problem, I suppose, in all good conscience can't be blamed on the staff of the library, since they'd have to stop reading magazines and get up from their desks to do anything about it. The problem is, of course, the study atmosphere at Morris, which is much the same as that of Studio 54.

Evidently, through word of mouth about the lax discipline at Morris, students have made this the "in" place to hang out and socialize, to try to revive the lost art of conversation.

MORRIS the place to talk about your boyfriend, your girlfriend, herpes, how you wish you had sex so you could get herpes, how you're still hungover from last weekend, how your still hungover from 1979, how you'd like to do pushups on that girl at the table across from you, and on and on and on.

All this probably sounds awfully hostile, but then I think I've got a good reason to be hostile.

Just before the end of summer semester, I checked out a recent arrival to Morris' stacks entitled, "In the Spirit of Crazy Horse," a book about Leonard Peltier and the Indian movement (or so

Rod Stone
Student
Editor-in-Chief

I'm told, since I never got the chance to read the book). And, with the intention of spending the days over break relaxing in the sun with the book, I set out for home.

LESS THAN A WEEK into break (and about eight pages into the book), I got a communique from my friends at Morris explaining that the book had been recalled and I had been paying fines on it since the day before the message's arrival. Hey, there's good news!

Seeing how there were still two weeks left in break, I was in the dark as to how they expected me to return the book before the fines got astronomical. I could see the student workers back at Morris, eyes gleaming, mouths watering, their itchy trigger fingers anxiously waiting to use that "ol bur-sar's hold stamp.

Well, there was no getting around it, I'd been outwitted. I'd underestimated them. I had no choice but to wait it out.

WHEN I got back in town, I went straight to the library hoping to win their leniency. My palms wet, my eyes wild with hysteria, I crawled up to the counter and sang the girl my sad song, pleading for mercy.

But, like a good Nazi, she just glared down at me with her steely eyes and said, "Pay up or die, scum." What could I do? I paid.

But here's where it becomes hard to bear. About a week later, I was walking up to the second floor of the library when I saw a display case filled with books under the heading of "Banned Books." In it was "In the Spirit of Crazy Horse." Agghast, all I could think of was, "They recalled my book, fined me and degraded me, just so they could put it in a display case!" It's taken awhile for the irony to set in.

FINALLY, there's the mystery of the missing magazine. If only Rod Serling was alive today, he'd love this.

Last summer, I was curious about Thomas McGuane, whose books I'd been reading. Using the trusty Reader's Guide, I found an interview with him listed in the January, 1981, issue of Rolling Stone. But, I couldn't find the magazine on the shelf, either on the undergraduate library or the humanities floor. So, I asked a librarian and was told that it was at a bindery in Indiana, but was due back in 10 days. Fine, no problem, right? I'll come back in 10 days. Life should be so simple.

I RETURNED eagerly 10 days later, but still couldn't locate the issue. I went back and asked again, this time I talked to a different librarian. She said that whoever told me the magazine was at the bindery and its scheduled return date was way out of line, according to Library Policy, as if Library Policy was handed down to Moses on stone tablets.

She had no idea when the magazine would be back, or so she said. It could be six or eight weeks, there was no telling. I began to smell a conspiracy (at the time I'd been watching "60 Minutes" and reading Royko a lot).

So I returned six weeks later, at the end of the summer. This time I dealt with a third librarian. I was friendly, but firm, figuring this was the best way to get results. He said he couldn't tell me when the issue would be back. I was not overjoyed to hear this.

SINCE THIS last attempt to discover the magazine's whereabouts, I've not inquired again. I have, though, been back periodically (no pun intended) to see if it has been miraculously returned. As of early November, no luck.

Maybe the University should send Leonard Nimoy out in search of it.

Letters

Hugging gives SIU new meaning

When was the last time you hugged anyone? If you're like most of us, it's been too long. Our society has created another taboo on a fun and beneficial form of interaction. I suppose the main reason we all become closed on this issue might be because no one wants to get real close to someone who stinks like a brewery, an ashtray, or like they haven't had a bath in a year, but they are a minority. Most of us could really enjoy, and grow closer to each other through this socially acceptable form of interaction.

I am proposing a hugging center. Anyone who feels uninhibited enough to help someone by giving them a hug is welcome. Please don't mistake this as some form of orgy, but rather as a time and place where all of us can be loved, just because we are.

Are you confident enough in your own sexuality to be able to reap the benefits of hugging someone you haven't met yet, even possibly the same sex? If you think you might be, how about participating in our little experiment. To avoid any legal technicalities, let's meet in the Free Forum area, anytime around noon, every day possible for the express purpose of hugging. To make it easier to identify fellow huggers, I propose that we all indicate our desire to be hugged by displaying our group call letters: S.I.U. — Squeezers Interaction Uninhibited.

I am sincerely looking forward to the day I can become closer to everyone I have come to know and many of you I have yet to meet. Hugging is exciting, but don't take my word for it, try it. — Joe Cruba, Sophomore, General Studies.

Athletics at SIU-C; a time for progress

After reading the commentary of Nov. 29 concerning the athletic fee and the idea of cutting sports programs, I feel it is time to share some of my thoughts on the issues.

What is taking place in intercollegiate athletics, in relation to the nation's changing economy, is a separation or division of schools. Some athletic departments are stagnating and declining as they attempt to battle budget cuts with program reduction and elimination, while others are aggressively undertaking the challenging task of supporting and enhancing the existing programs. While innovators in progressive schools implement effective strategies, near-sighted decision-makers in the other schools are pondering where to drop the ax next.

SIU athletics is showing signs of moving in the direction of progress. Visionary people like Stan McAnally, the President of the SIU Foundation (a proven developer), are attempting to bring national recognition to Southern in as many areas as possible. The current search for a full-time fund raiser for athletics is a step in the right direction. This type of move is progressive. We have a vice president of Student Affairs who sees the relevance and importance of a successful athletic program. We have very intelligent, competent athletic directors in Charlotte West and Lew Hartzog, who have surrounded themselves with highly capable coaches and support staff. This group, along with the entire University and Southern Illinois area has the potential to make Saluki Athletics really "take off" through the '80s and into the '90s.

Ray Dempsey and his program (How 'Bout Them Dogs!) are a prime example of what can happen here in Salukiland. But one element, crucial in most everything, is timing. As we head into our first home football playoff game in the history of our school, with the No. 1 ranking, a good deal of focus — national focus — will be on us. We must realize this is a golden opportunity for terrific promotion of our athletic program. The success we have had in football this fall could be the boost that is needed to move us up onto a new level of competitive athletics, in terms of exposure and recognition.

Funding will eventually come from the SIU Foundation, and through improved marketing and promotion. But this won't occur overnight. A temporary increase in the athletic fee is needed, now more than ever. We do not want to look back on this time and see a "missed opportunity." Life is full of missed opportunities, so let's not let this be one of them.

To the student body of which I am a member, I submit the question: How many of you will feel proud when our team runs onto the turf of McAndrew Stadium this Saturday? Just remember, they could not have done it, and cannot continue to do it, without us. — Ken Neuhaus, Graduate Student, Higher Education.

Emergency Operation Center always on-call for disasters

By Paula J. Finlay
Staff Writer

Upstairs is the City Council Chamber where government officials make decisions about everything from sidewalks to liquor licenses.

Below is the Emergency Operations Center where those same decision-makers would assemble if a disaster struck Carbondale.

In the emergency center's conference room, its largest room, is a long table lined with chairs. In an emergency, the mayor and city manager would meet in that room with the city's department heads.

"That way the people in charge would be in one spot and you don't have one person giving one order and somebody else giving a different one," said Steve Piltz, Carbondale's emergency services and disaster agency coordinator.

But on a day-to-day basis other rooms in the center are more active. A small room houses two teletype machines that constantly provide raw weather data and prepared forecasts from the National Weather Service. In another room there are radios and weather forecasting instruments. The walls are a patchwork of maps and bulletin boards filled with charts.

Some of those charts are hand-drawn by Piltz, who takes the raw weather data and converts it to maps showing area conditions and compares his map to the forecast. Other maps show Carbondale, the SIUC campus, Southern Illinois, and the nation.

A careful check is kept on weather conditions. Piltz has weather monitors at home, too - and if the outlook is for severe weather Piltz stays at the center to watch the situation and at times spends 24 hours at a stretch there.

"We have a pretty good idea when to go home and when not to go home," Piltz said.

During a period of potentially severe weather late last spring Piltz and several volunteers

Review course for CPA exam planned

By Joyce Vonderheide
Staff Writer

Individuals who wish to take a review course for the May 1984 Certified Public Accountant Examination will no longer have to drive to St. Louis for the course. A review program will be offered for the first time on campus in the spring semester.

The program will include all four areas of the Uniform CPA Exam — theory, practice, auditing and law. Nancy Morrill, graduate assistant in accounting, said.

The review course "is designed to help people study enough that they pass (the test) the first time," she said.

To be eligible, individuals must have completed 120 semester hours at the time of the May exam, Morrill said. Of these hours, 27 must be in accounting, auditing and business law, with no more than six hours in business law.

The non-credit course will be offered "outside normal course structure," she said, and will be presented in 21 sessions plus two practice exams.

Cost for the entire program is $500. The fee includes the cost of supplemental classroom materials and in-class exercises and examinations, but not the cost of texts and reference materials.

The sessions will be held on Saturdays from Jan. 21 through April 28, 1984. Sessions will meet from 8:30 a.m. to noon and 1 to 4:30 p.m. in Rehn Hall.

Instructors for the program will be faculty and professionals who have experience and expertise in accounting, Morrill said.

Individuals who enroll for the whole course and pass only part of the exam may retake the part they did not pass without charge, Morrill added.

The review course is sponsored by the College of Business and Administration and the Department of Accounting. Applications are due by Dec. 20 and payments must be received by Jan. 16, 1984. Applications or more information are available from Morrill at Rehn 232, 453-2289.

were at the center for 105 hours over five days.

If a tornado was going to occur, up to 15 minutes of warning could be given, Piltz said, but an earthquake would give no warning. In a nuclear attack, the center would give protection from fallout "although it's not perfect," he said.

There are enough fallout shelters in Carbondale to house more than all of the city's residents, Piltz said, although most of them are no longer stocked with supplies. Originally stocked in the 1960s, the supplies have since spoiled or been vandalized and the federal government has not replaced them, he said.

In a disaster, city officials would be called to the center and would refer to a thick black notebook that holds the basic emergency preparedness plan that would be put into action.

Although "each disaster is different," the plan defines the responsibilities of department heads, lists resources that the city can quickly obtain, such as tractors and trucks, and tells how to contact area schools, Piltz said.

"It looks almost too simple," he said.

But if the decision-makers have to move downstairs, the plan will give them the flexibility they will need to respond to different situations, he said.

Applications open for forestry jobs

Applications are being accepted for temporary seasonal and summer jobs with the USDA-Forest Service.

Job opportunities are available in 14 national forests for aid and technician positions within the biological and physical sciences in forest resource management.

Application forms are available at all Shawnee National Forest Offices and should be returned by Jan. 15 to Temporary Employment, USDA-Forest Service, 310 W. Wisconsin Ave., Milwaukee, WI 53203.

Ice machine receives $800 damage

An ice machine at the Holiday Inn, 900 E. Main St., received $800 worth of damage Wednesday when someone — possibly an irate customer — bludgeoned it with some type of object, according to Carbondale police.

The report of damaged property was reported to police at 9:35 a.m. Hotel workers said an angry customer might be responsible for the damage.

because complaints had been received earlier that the machine was making a lot of noise.

Coal regulations, rights of citizens included in guide

By Joyce Vonderheide
Staff Writer

Illinois residents can learn their rights concerning enforcement of state and federal coal mining reclamation standards through a new guide published by the Illinois South Project of Herrin.

"Inspection and Enforcement" is the first in a series of guides called "Your Rights in the Coalfields."

State and federal regulations are based on the Federal Surface Mining and Reclamation Act passed in 1977, which created an active role for citizens in its enforcement. Success of the law is "dependent on people getting involved," Steve Pittman, Illinois South Project staff member, said.

The guide explains the act, which concerns "environmental effects of mines," not safety violations, Pittman said. The guide also describes the process of enforcement of state and federal surface mining laws and explains what citizens can do if their homes or property are adversely affected by mining operations.

Under the law, individuals can request a coal mine inspection if they suspect the mine is violating state or federal standards. The individuals also have the right to accompany inspectors.

Pittman said some people aren't sure what to do if they suspect that the law is being violated. A similar guide on mine blasting regulations was published three years ago and people who used that guide said it was helpful.

The guide also includes form letters for citizens to use in calling for inspections. Pittman said the Project has felt that enforcement of state laws has been "less than satisfactory."

Before publication, the 26-page guide was reviewed by Susan Lane, public affairs manager of the Illinois Department of Mines and Minerals' Land Reclamation Division. The guide is available from the Project for $4.65.

maintenance reports and hid some records when Federal Aviation Administration inspectors came.

Zich, the 10th person to testify, said that if a plane had fuel leaks "we would wash the plane down to cover them" so FAA inspectors could not find them.

Street said those practices occurred before he took over in September, 1979. Soon after that date he fired the vice president for maintenance and hired Rich

Ledson, who presently holds that position.

Those practices have since been eliminated, he said.

"We are very upset about the method used by staff and board members to question him," Street said of the interrogation of Zich.

During the hearings it was revealed that Zich had, on Monday, been "coached" by Air Illinois' legal counsel. He named Richard Littlell and two other attorneys as having told him how to recognize "leading" questions from the board.

Street said that it was not mandated that Air Illinois employees seek legal counsel, but many who have or will testify have done so. We are airline people and not professional witnesses. It has been a very difficult and dramatic situation," he said.

Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, said that he "did not take it as a serious proposal. I think it was more of a protest vote."

Swinburne said that he was pleased with the IAAC vote. "We're not looking for additional dollars. We're looking

Lavelle convicted on perjury charge, obstructing inquiry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rita Lavelle, former head of the government's $1.6 billion hazardous waste cleanup program, was convicted Thursday on three felony counts of perjury and one count of trying to obstruct a congressional inquiry.

After deliberating almost seven hours, the jury found Ms. Lavelle guilty of lying last February about the date she learned her former employer, Aerojet-General Corp., was involved in a California waste dump.

The jury convicted her on two counts of lying before Senate and House committees about this fact and on one count of lying about the date in a sworn statement submitted to Congress.

Ms. Lavelle also was convicted of trying to obstruct a congressional inquiry by sending the false statement to Congress.

The only count for which the jury did not return a guilty verdict was a charge that Ms. Lavelle lied last February when she denied using her post at the Environmental Protection Agency to help Republican candidates.

However, on four of the five felony counts brought against Ms. Lavelle by a grand jury in August, the 10 women and two men on the jury found her guilty.

The jurors returned to the courtroom briefly early in the day after requesting that U.S. District Judge Norma Johnson explain legal points again concerning one of the five counts against Ms. Lavelle.

Ms. Lavelle, 36, faced five felony charges of perjury and obstructing a congressional investigation.

The jury also asked to see a document which formed the basis of two of the charges, a Dec. 13 letter Ms. Lavelle wrote explaining when she learned Aerojet-General had dumped wastes at the Stringfellow acid pits in California.

In the sworn statement and in later testimony before Congress, Ms. Lavelle maintained that she first learned about Aerojet's Stringfellow connection June 17, 1982.

The government contended that Ms. Lavelle was told about Aerojet on May 28, called an Aerojet official three days later to alert him of EPA's findings and continued her involvement until EPA officials pressured her to withdraw June 18.

The government charged Ms. Lavelle lied because she didn't want to jeopardize her relationship with her former company where she hoped to work after leaving the EPA.

Ms. Lavelle contended that her version of events was correct. She said she did not trust the information she received May 28 and waited until it had been verified before withdrawing from the Stringfellow case.

During six hours on the stand, Ms. Lavelle maintained that while she discussed politics she never made cleanup decisions based on political considerations.

Ms. Lavelle either denied or said she could not remember conversations in which government witnesses testified she discussed helping candidates.

issues, unemployment and the disturbing lack of U.S. made products.

"Don't Fall Apart On Me Tonight," and "Sweetheart Like You" (the first single) prove Dylan an extraordinary balladeer, free of the cheap displays of emotion that frequently characterize the genre.

"Infidels" producer Knopfler, assisted by engineer Neil Dorfsman, achieves Dylan's best recorded sound in years. The LP's superior sound owes plenty to the excellent musicians who guested on

"Infidels," including the Rasta rhythm section of drummer Sly Dunbar and bassist Robbie Shakespeare, guitarists Knopfler and Taylor, and Dire Straits keyboard player Alan Clark.

"Infidels" is not only the best rock album of 1983, but is a triumphant comeback by an artist who holds the distinction, along with Elvis Presley and the Beatles, as the most influential figure in rock'n'roll.

Horizontal Brian, "Vertical" — Gold Mountain

Artwork by two grads on display

By Liz Myers
Staff Writer

Karen Lyverse and Chad Wellons, master's of fine arts students, will show thesis exhibits in the University Museum in Faner Hall, Friday through Dec. 13.

Wellons will be exhibiting paintings, drawings and assemblages which show his viewpoint that art has a functional role in philosophy by moving ideologically from point A to point B and challenging one's opinions in social responsibility.

Wellons' style is diverse, moving from different expressionism to primitive and native art.

During two years of study at SIUC, Wellons has been a teaching assistant in the Drawing Program in the Department of Art and a research assistant in the Department of Art History.

A public reception will be held for both artists from 6 to 8 p.m. Friday. The hours for the museum are 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. Monday through Friday.

"Vertical" is the debut LP from these British popsters which sound like the "bastard son of Squeeze and Madness."

Led by bassist and singer Tony Phillips, Horizontal Brian plays a distinctive, humorous brand of lightweight pop, characterized by jangling guitars and bouncy keyboards. Vocally, the band is reminiscent of "Dirty Looks," a New York pop trio which released two critically acclaimed but commercially stillborn LPs several years ago.

Production chores are handled by the band itself and the finished product is surprisingly fresh and coherent, especially for a debut. "Vertical's" standout tracks include, "Everybody Wants To Be American," "Physical Wreck," and "Buried In Your Best Suit."

GPSC approves resolution for Health Service fee change

By Bruce Kirkham
Staff Writer

The Graduate and Professional Student Council passed a resolution Wednesday calling for a $15 increase in the Student Health Service fee in the fall and spring semesters, while reducing the summer semester fee by $15.

The proposed fee increase would raise the spring and summer semester Health Service fees from $60 to $75, and would set the summer fee at $45.

Sam McVay, director of Student Health Programs, said that revenue from the proposed fee increase would be "just about in the ballpark" to offset a $429,000 deficit in the projected fiscal year 1985 Health Service budget.

McVay told the GPSC Nov. 9 that the projected budget deficit will be caused by expected increases in the costs of medical services.

The resolution suggests that the Health Service maintain the $3 charge for visits to the Health Service for up to eight visits. Students would not be charged for subsequent visits.

The resolution requests that there be no $3 service charge for return visits ordered by the doctor.

The resolution also asks the Health Service to add major medical coverage for hospitalization above the $20,000 limit now in service. McVay said that his office is investigating the costs of raising the $20,000 limit with the carriers of the Health Service's insurance policy.

Under the resolution, the maximum amount of expenses incurred by students for off-campus medical services would be set at $200.

McVay said that he is waiting for the Undergraduate Student Organization position on the fee increase before taking a proposal to Bruce Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, for consideration by the SIU Board of Trustees.

Ann Greeley, GPSC president, said that she would work with the USO in working out a position agreeable to both student groups. "It is important to come up with a position that we can all live with," she said.

The USO is expected to consider a fee increase proposal at its Dec. 7 senate meeting.

A motion to add an amendment to the resolution that would make the first visit to the Health Service each semester exempt from the $3 charge was defeated by the council.

McVay said that the free first visit policy would be a "positive way to go philosophically in the future."

In other business, the GPSC approved a resolution that "deplores the SIU-C administration's decision to cut funding for the Russian Department."

The resolution, which passed by a 30-0 margin with three abstentions, cites several reasons to preserve the program, including the Committee on Academic Priorities' recommendation to maintain the program.

The resolution states that "the study of Russian language and Soviet culture is necessary in our understanding of the Soviet perspective."

John Guyon, vice president for academic affairs, said that the administration has not yet reached a decision on the Russian Program. Guyon said that he will meet with James Light, dean of the College of Liberal Arts, and Helmut Liedloff, chairman of the Foreign Languages and Literatures Department, to discuss the future of the program.

Thomas wins Moore Award

Richard M. Thomas, professor of community development and higher education, has been named winner of the Willis Moore Award. The SIU-C chapter of the American Association of University Professors gives the award to an outstanding faculty member each year.

His work with developing communities in this country, as well as foreign countries like Rhodesia, Kenya and Jamaica, has been enormous," said David F. Christensen, professor of geography, who presented the award.

The award is named for Willis Moore, former president of the AAUP chapter, who was chairman of the Philosophy Department. Moore was also on the SIU Board of Trustees from 1974 to 1977.

The Merry Wives of Windsor

This ribald comedy revolves around Sir John Falstaff and his attempts to seduce two of Windsor's prosperous citizens' wives at the same time--unaware that the two have caught on to him and are conspiring against him. The plot thickens when the two husbands are informed of Falstaff's shenanigans and decide to deal with him in their own way!

"We want to get it sound, to make sure everybody knows what they are supposed to do," Dempsey said.

Saluki quarterback Rick Johnson is healthy again for the first time since his knee and ankle injuries in the season opener against Western Illinois forced him to miss two and a half games.

JOHNSON, WHO led the Missouri Valley Conference quarterbacks in passing efficiency earlier this season, completed 108 of 214 passes for 1,413 yards and eight touchdowns. He also threw 16 interceptions.

SIU-C lost 26 of 33 fumbles this year and has a total of 45 turnovers, which is why Dempsey said his team needs to avoid turnovers if it is going to win.

Tailback Derrick Taylor, 525 yards rushing on 124 carries, fullback-tailback Terry Green, 377 yards on 73 carries, and fullback Corky Field, 347 yards on 87 carries, head the ground game. The trio has scored 16 of the Salukis' 47 touchdowns this year.

Taylor, with 28 catches for 272 yards, split end James Stevenson, with 26 catches for 452 yards, and Shephard, with 19 catches for 206 yards, are the Salukis' top receivers.

SIU-C'S DEFENSE, the leader in every major category in the MVC this season, including a school-record 28 interceptions, will be put on the line for the second time against Indiana State quarterback Jeff Miller, the MVC passing efficiency leader.

Miller completed 54.8

percent of his passes this season, 143 of 261, for 1,762 yards and nine touchdowns, while throwing just four interceptions. One of the interceptions was by Saluki cornerback Donnell Daniel, which led to the Salukis' first touchdown in the teams' first encounter.

Although Miller averaged 101 yards passing per game during the regular season, he'll be throwing into a defense that has allowed 121 yards passing per game.

BESIDES HIS glittering passing statistics, Miller rushed for 106 yards on 106 carries to finish as his squad's second leading rusher. Like Wichita State quarterback Brian McDonald, most of Miller's yards came out of Indiana State's option attack.

Badger Coach Steve Yoder's starting lineup will consist of two sophomore guards and three juniors on the front line. Six-foot-nine John Ploss will play center with 6-foot-7 Scott Ross and 6-foot-6 Cory Blackwell at forward. Six-foot-one Rick Olson and 6-foot-4 David Miller will man the guard positions.

While romping over Florida A&M, Yoder used all 12 of his players. Each scored at least one point. Miller led with 23 points, Olson scored 22 and Blackwell tallied 19. Wisconsin shot 52 percent from the field.

Van Winkle said he is pleased with the shooting efficiency displayed by his club.

"If we continue to get good perimeter shooting, things will open up for our bigger guys inside," Van Winkle said.

Van Winkle said the Salukis played better in their 79-60 win over Missouri-Kansas City than they did in Wednesday's 103-73 thrashing over ISU-E.

"Offensively, we played better against ISU-E, but we played a tougher game defensively against Missouri-Kansas City," Van Winkle said.

performances from all the teams."

Maul said his team would concentrate on swimming lifetime bests and qualifying as many people as possible for the NCAAAs.

"We're not really concerned with the team race," Maul said. "We'll be focusing on individuals swimming their fastest times ever. If we can do that, the team score will take care of itself."

South Carolina and Kansas are the other teams Hill expects will finish high in the meet. Kansas was the seventh-place finisher in the NCAAAs last year and South Carolina finished in the top 20.

But don't count out the SIU-C squad.

The Saluki women have won all three of their dual meets this season and ran away from a six-team field in the University of Illinois-Chicago Flame Relays. They have also broken eight pool records on the way to those wins.

The Saluki swimmers have had some outstanding performances from All-Americans Pam Ratcliffe and Amanda Martin in the breaststroke events, Roxanna Carlton in free distance and Stacy Westfall in the fly.

Armi Airaksinen has turned in some strong performances in the 100 and 200 fly and the 100 free, and Barb Larsen has been in top form in the 200 free.

Wendy Irick, Rene Royalty, Paula Jansen, Sue Wittry and Linda Bell have also been turning in good performances for the team.

Hill expects his team to be in the running for a second-place finish, but said his team must continue to improve its times.

"The girls have to be ready to swim a good meet," Hill said. "As good as the competition is in this meet, I expect us to swim well. I'm sure we'll be in competition for one of the top spots."

Hill, like Maul, is concentrating more on individual effort and qualifying for the NCAA championships.

Diving Coach Dennis Golden also expects the competition and performances to be good for the divers.

Indiana has one of the top divers in the meet in Lona

Foss. Foss finished first in the AIAWs and second in the NCAA championships in 1982. She was also a top finalist in last year's NCAAAs.

The Hoosiers also have a pair of high school All-Americans in Tina McCrey and Dana Wiegand. McCrey was the Illinois state diving champion and Wiegand was the Indiana state champion for 1982.

Lisa Williams from South Carolina is also expected to finish well. She was an NCAA finalist last year and was also the titlist in the National Independents Championships on the 3-meter board.

Other divers that Golden expects to do well are Patsy O'Tool of Florida State and Marsha Weaton from Nebraska.

Golden is looking for a good performance from his standout diver, Angie Faidherbe. Faidherbe is the lone 1983 NCAA qualifier on the squad.

"I'm looking for some very good dives in the meet", Golden said. "Consistency is the most important factor. If divers can get into the water vertical on every dive, they'll finish toward the top."

Swimmers face best in home Shave Meet

By David Wilhelm
Staff Writer

The men's swimming team begins a busy weekend of action at 6 p.m. Friday at the Recreation Center pool. The Salukis will play host for the 5-S meet, or what is also referred to as a shave meet.

National Independent Conference rivals South Carolina and Florida State will compete, along with Big Eight teams Kansas and Nebraska. The meet continues Saturday, with starting times at 10 a.m. and 6 p.m.

Saluki Coach Bob Steele said the 5-S concept involves the swimmers shaving their bodies for faster times; (p)syching themselves up; Speedo, or wearing light-weight suits called lycras; spaghetti, for foods that have carbohydrates, and standards, to motivate them to reach NCAA time standards.

Steele said he was encouraged by the performance of his team against No. 2-ranked Southern Methodist University despite being on the short end of a 73-40 score. He believes that the SMU meet prepared his squad for some good swims this weekend.

"We had some encouraging things in the SMU meet," Steele said. "The way the sprints swam, the breast-strokes and the backstrokes were particularly encouraging. If you look at those and the one week of rest we've had for the mind and body, we'll be ready physically to go after the standards. We can't make them without resting and shaving."

Steele said that shaving the swimmers' bodies reduces two to three seconds per 100 yards off the times. He said that he would be "tickled pink" if his swimmers could make six to eight national standard times, but will not be disappointed if they don't. The Salukis will have two more attempts to do that.

"We haven't had enough meets to know where we're at," said Steele. "We'll have 10 weeks of training before our next shot. When it comes to performing, 95 percent is mental and five percent is physical."

"There are 53 kids (men and women) here that have made NCAA qualifying times," Steele said. "The quality is really good."

Steele said that Nebraska, Florida State and South Carolina will be the toughest teams at the meet, though he is not counting out the Salukis.

Steele said that each of the swimmers will be placed in heats with other swimmers who have had very similar times to this point in the season.

"There will be three to five heats of every event," Steele said. "If the seeding is correct, every race should be close between eight people."

Diving Coach Dennis Golden is just as sure about the tough competition his divers will face. Golden said that each team has one top diver, but the quality does not stop there.

"Each school also has a fine group of divers," Golden said. "So there's lots of depth. We should have three of the top 12 finalists, but making the finals will not be necessarily easy."

Nebraska divers are led by Renaldo Castro, who will represent the Dominican Republic in the 1984 Olympics. He has also qualified for the NCAA's the last two years. South Carolina returns Rob Gentry, an NCAA All-American. Kansas has Kent Griswald, who was a high school All-American, and Florida State is led by NCAA qualifier Chris McGregor.

Golden said that his divers' workouts have been going well.

"We've been working on consistency in practice," Golden said. "That will be the key to placing in the finals this weekend. Whoever makes the fewest mistakes will be right up there."

The Salukis will be diving Nigel Stanton, Jim Watson, Tom Wentland and Eric Schmisser.

South Carolina Coach Steve Collins said that this weekend will be virtually the beginning of his teams' season.

"We've had only one meet," Collins said, "and that was against Emory University, a small school in Atlanta. We've been training hard for this meet because there is excellent competition here. We're looking forward to it."

Collins said that diving is the strongest point of his team, noting that Alan Backas, Mark Rutledge, Bob Vaught and Rob Gentry have been performing well.

He also said that swimmers Greg Warner, Rob Bedford and Chris Berry have looked good. Warner is one of the top performers in the conference in the 400 individual medley. Berry has the best time in the conference (20:38) in the 50 free and is third in the NIC in the 100 free.

even though it is in the same time zone as SIU-C and has not had a home game, Hartzog said he still thinks SIU-C would receive the home game because of the attendance factor.

SIU-C has averaged 13,660 people per game this year, while North Texas State's attendance is about 12,000. That figure includes an estimated 6,500 students who get in free because of money they pay in their athletic fee.

SIU-C has had three games with crowds of 14,000 or more, including a season-high of 16,600.

"If Nevada-Reno wins, the game won't be out there because of the starting time," Hartzog said. "The attendance record has been poor this year for North Texas State."

"Our football team really needs the fans Saturday. We need 13,000 or 14,000 people at our ballgame."

Defense did a job for the football Salukis this year.

Enroute to the team's 10-1 record, the Saluki defensive corps set three NCAA Division I-AA team and individual records (most yards gained on interceptions, 447; most interceptions in a game, 8, and most interception returns for touchdowns, 3, by Donnell Daniel).

They also tied a pair of Division I-AA marks (most interception returns for touchdowns, 4, and most opponents' turnovers gained, 51 on 28 interceptions and 23 fumbles).

And they dominated the Missouri Valley statistics as the stingiest team against rushing, passing, total defense and scoring.

As one consequence of dealing their foes all that misery, the unit that defensive coordinator Carl Angelo put together landed four players on the All-Missouri Valley defensive first team — middle guard Sterling Haywood, tackle Ken Foster, linebacker Granville Butler and cornerback Daniel who also was named the MVC Defensive Player of the Year.

Tackle Brad Pilgard was named to the All-Valley offensive first team, and capping SIU-C's record year for conference honors was selection of Coach Rey Dempsey as Coach of the Year. All told, 13 Salukis earned first and second team and honorable mention recognition in the MVC.

Salukis healthy, anxious to play

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

A history-making event at SIU-C will be in the works when the Salukis' I-AA quarterfinal playoff game against Indiana State kicks off at 12:30 p.m. Saturday at McAndrew Stadium.

No other Saluki team has reached the I-AA playoffs, but Saluki Coach Rey Dempsey said his No. 1-ranked squad probably would not be any more nervous than usual.

"Everybody has some jitters, the so-called butterflies," Dempsey said. "Pro athletes have them. We'll be a little nervous, but we won't be apprehensive."

"We're anxious to play." The Salukis should be anxious to play. Unlike the Sycamores, 9-3, who played last Saturday, the Salukis will be following a three-week layoff, but Dempsey said he was glad to have it.

PLAYERS WITH nagging injuries such as cornerback Terry Taylor, nose guard

Sterling Haywood and tight end Carey Shephard, who will start after missing several games because he was injured, are "completely healthy," Dempsey said.

"The biggest thing besides being well is that the kids have practiced all of this week, last week and the week before," Dempsey said. "Before, they were missing practice time while getting treatment."

All-MVC Salukis in action. Page 27

"Some weeks, players were missing all of practice except for Thursday. If you do that two or three weeks in a row, you're just missing too much of what the other team's doing."

Although Indiana State's 16-13 win over Eastern Illinois Saturday helped the Sycamores with their "continuity," Dempsey said, they still have a disadvantage facing them.

No. 1

"THEY'VE PLAYED and that's helped rid them of their jitters with the playoff game," Dempsey said, "but they will probably have bumps and bruises that no one knows about except them."

Even though the playoff game will be a rematch of the Salukis' 34-21 victory Oct. 22 at Indiana State, Dempsey said it would be difficult to duplicate the scoring spurge the Salukis did that day. SIU-C jumped out to a 31-0 lead with more than 11 minutes left in the second quarter.

"That's hard to do against anyone, let alone against a good team like them," Dempsey said.

What SIU-C will need against Indiana State in order to win, Dempsey said, is execution on both offense and defense, avoiding turnovers, and a strong performance with high intensity.

"WE HAVE to play a strong game like we did for about nine-and-a-half games this year," Dempsey said. "We've played great football all year and we've had only a few lapses."

"Execution is important and it's even bigger than what most people think it is. Execution means doing what you are coached to do. If you run a play, everybody blocks that play the way it is supposed to be blocked so that there is no error in it."

The same goes for the special teams, where Dempsey said his squad needs to "win the battle."

"We need to have a great day special teams-wise, where we make something happen," Dempsey said. "It doesn't always have to be like a blocked punt. We need to cover kickoffs well, or cover punts well. We can't have a breakdown somewhere that they capitalize on."

THE SALUKIS' special teams scored a touchdown against Indiana State when the Sycamores were in punt formation.

Against Eastern Illinois, the special teams were instrumental in SIU-C's 17-14 win. A blocked punt that was recovered in the end zone led to one Saluki touchdown and a blocked field goal in the last seconds of the game preserved the victory for the Salukis.

Three fumble recoveries by the punt return team against Northern Iowa led to three touchdowns.

Although the kicking game is in good shape, Dempsey said he went back over it, but did not change much.

Hill's squad to battle six of country's best

By Scott Rich
Staff Writer

Six of the nation's top-ranked swimming teams will compete in the SIU-C Time Standard Invitational Friday and Saturday and women's swimming Coach Tim Hill said some outstanding performances can be expected.

The meet starts at 6 p.m. Friday, 10 a.m. Saturday and 6 p.m. Saturday at the Recreation Center pool.

"This is definitely the best meet of the season," Hill said. "With the caliber of competition at the meet, I expect to see quite a few lifetime bests in many events."

Teams from Florida State, Kansas, Nebraska, South Carolina and Indiana are entered in the meet.

According to Hill, Florida State will be the team to beat this weekend.

The Lady Seminoles, 3-1 after five dual meets, have had three swimmers qualify for the NCAA Championships in sophomore Sarah Linke and Canadian swimmers Natalie Deschamps and Joanne Bedard.

According to Seminole Coach Terry Maul, Linke is the person to watch in the 200 fly, which she swam in the World Games in 1982.

Deschamps and Bedard, members of the 1983 Canadian Pan American Team, should turn in some good performances. Deschamps has qualified for the NAAs in the 100 fly and Bedard in the 200 breast. Bedard's time of 2:21.4 is the best time in the country for that event.

Even though his team is picked to win the invitational, Maul isn't getting overconfident.

"This is the fastest team meet in the country for this time of year," Maul said. "SIU-C has a very fast pool. I'm looking for outstanding

National TV may be in Salukis' picture

By Jim Lexa
Staff Writer

The winner of the Saluki-Sycamore quarterfinal playoff game Saturday will have its semifinal playoff game on Dec. 10 broadcast live on national television by CBS, said Lew Hartzog, SIU-C men's athletic director.

Hartzog said he found out about the telecast, which originally was going to be shown only regionally, Thursday morning.

The semifinal game, with the other opponent to be the winner of the North Texas State-Nevada-Reno quarterfinal game, is scheduled to begin at 11 a.m., which is one of the factors that has Hartzog excited.

If Nevada-Reno beats North Texas State, the chances improve that the Salukis, if they beat Indiana State, could host the semifinal game, Hartzog said.

The NCAA selection committee, which decides who is going to host a game, does not like to award a team two home games, but since Nevada-Reno has hosted a game, it would have to award a second home game to one of the teams.

Another factor working against Nevada-Reno is that the semifinal game will begin at 9 a.m., Nevada time.

"That is an unacceptable time to begin a ballgame," Hartzog said.

If North Texas State wins,

Red-hot cagers play two more, braced for toughest games yet

By Daryl Van Schouwen
Staff Writer

The hot-shooting Salukis will try for their third straight win Friday when they play host to Mississippi Valley State at the Arena. An early tipoff has been set for 6:05 p.m.

SIU-C shot a combined 58 percent in its first two games while posting victories over Missouri-Kansas City Monday and Indiana State-Evansville Wednesday.

According to Saluki Coach Allen Van Winkle, Mississippi Valley State, a Southwestern Athletic Conference member, is a better team than UMKC and ISU-E.

Following Friday's matchup with Mississippi Valley State at the Arena, the Salukis fly to Madison, Wis., where the Badgers of Wisconsin await them for a Saturday showdown. The tipoff at the Wisconsin Field House is set for 1:05 p.m.

Friday's tipoff was moved up to 6:05 to accommodate the team's flight and Saturday afternoon contest at Wisconsin. The Salukis get their first road test of the season Saturday. Last year, SIU-C was 1-13 on the road.

The Delta Devils of Mississippi Valley State are 1-2. They defeated Prairie View 81-61 and lost to Alabama State 99-91 and to Alabama-Birmingham 87-73.

Last year the Devils were 6-8 in the SAC, 11-17 overall. Lafayette Stribling, in his first year as coach at MVS, said he "doesn't know a thing about SIU-C, except that they have a rich basketball tradition."

"We'll try to run a controlled fast break," Stribling said. "We'd like to control the tempo, but since we don't know too much about Southern we may have to adjust as we go along."

"In spots we've looked okay, but we haven't put together a whole game yet. We're just feeling our way around right now, trying to get things straightened out in time for our conference schedule."

The Devils will start freshman Greg Ivory (13.7 points per game) and Roosevelt Pritchett (10.7) at guard and 6-foot-7 Robert Sanders (14.7) and 6-foot-6 Robert Phillip (13.7) at forward. Six-foot-9 Otis Hurst will start at center.

"Our strong suit may be that we distribute our scoring evenly," Stribling said. "We don't rely on just one man."

Wisconsin should give SIU-C its toughest test so far this season on Saturday. The Badgers, 3-15 in the Big Ten last year, 8-20 overall, crushed Florida A&M in their season opener Nov. 26.

Although 6-foot-11 Brad Sellers transferred to Ohio State and the Badgers managed only an 8-20 record last season, Wisconsin is no slouch as far as the Salukis are concerned.

Big Ten teams won 78 percent of games played against non-conference foes last season. Wisconsin was 5-5 outside the conference.
